

Fiber optic patch cord HS encoding

AI Overview

Fiber optic patch cords are commonly classified under HS codes 85447090, 854442, or 90011000 depending on type and usage.

Overview of HS Codes for Fiber Optic Patch Cords

The Harmonized System (HS) is an internationally standardized system for classifying traded goods, used to determine tariffs and facilitate customs procedures. Fiber optic patch cords, which are used to transmit data via light signals between devices, fall under several HS codes depending on their construction and purpose:

- HS Code 85447090: This is one of the most widely used codes for optical fiber patch cords, particularly sheathed cables used for data transmission. It covers general fiber optic patch cords for commercial and industrial applications.
- HS Code 854442: Often used for specific types of fiber optic patch cords, including simplex or duplex cords with connectors like SC, LC, or APC, and for cables with low-smoke zero-halogen (LSZH) jackets. This code is commonly referenced in global import/export data.
- HS Code 90011000: Sometimes applied to fiber patch cords in certain jurisdictions, particularly when the cords are considered optical fiber instruments or components. This code may be used for customs reporting in countries like the United States.

Key Considerations

- Connector Type and Cable Specification: The HS code may vary depending on whether the patch cord is simplex or duplex, single-mode or multi-mode, and the type of connector (SC, LC, ST, etc.).
- Customs Authority Determination: While manufacturers or exporters may suggest an HS code, the final classification is determined by the customs authority in the importing country.
- Tariff Implications: Different HS codes can result in different tariff rates. For example, sheathed fiber optic cables may have a different duty compared to optical components with fiber pigtailed.
- Practical Advice: Verify the HS code with the local customs authority or through official HS code lookup tools such as the US ITC site or other national customs databases. Include detailed product descriptions, including fi...
