

How much does 10 Gigabit indoor fiber optic cable cost

AI Overview

Indoor 10 Gigabit multimode fiber optic cable typically costs between $1.50 and $6.00 per foot, depending on fiber type, strand count, and jacket rating. Pricing Overview For 10 Gigabit indoor fiber, the most common choice is OM3 or OM4 multimode fiber, which supports 10G Ethernet up to 300 meters. Retail prices for these cables range from $1.50 to $6.00 per foot, with higher prices for pre-terminated assemblies or cables with additional protective features like LSZH (Low Smoke Zero Halogen) jackets or armored construction. Single-mode fiber (OS2) is generally cheaper per foot, ranging from $0.09 to $1.52, but requires more expensive transceivers and equipment. Indoor riser-rated cables (CMR) are less expensive than plenum-rated cables (CMP), which are required for air-handling spaces. Strand count affects cost: a 6-strand cable is cheaper than a 24-strand or 96-strand cable, with prices increasing proportionally. Bulk and Retail Considerations Bulk purchases (e.g., 1,000-foot spools) reduce the per-foot cost compared to retail or pre-terminated patch cables. Pre-terminated cables add 20–30% to material costs but can significantly reduce labor costs during installation, sometimes lowering total project costs by up to 70%. Example A 1000-foot spool of OM3 indoor/outdoor riser-rated cable suitable for 10G Ethernet can cost around $1.50–$3.00 per foot, totaling approximately $1,500–$3,000 for the spool. Adding pre-termination, armored protection, or specialized jackets can push the price toward the higher end of the $6 per foot range. Key Factors Affecting Cost Fiber Type: Single-mode vs multimode. Strand Count: More strands increase material cost. Jacket Rating: Riser (CMR) vs plenum (CMP) vs LSZH. Pre-Termination: Factory-terminated connectors increase upfront cost but reduce labor. Installation Complexity: Indoor runs are chea...
