

Lebanese fiber optic cable manufacturer

AI Overview

Lebanon hosts several reputable optical fiber cable manufacturers and suppliers, including OptiLink, Fiber Works & Communications (FWC), IMATEL S.A.R.L., and Nexans Lebanon. Key Companies OptiLink is a leading Lebanese supplier of fiber optic equipment, including SFP, SFP+, QSFP28, and GPON modules. They serve ISPs, data centers, and enterprises across Lebanon and the Middle East, offering fast delivery and compatibility with major brands like Cisco, Huawei, and MikroTik. Fiber Works & Communications (FWC) S.A.R.L. specializes in high-speed and wide-area network solutions. They provide European and American fiber optic products, system integration, and support for Lebanon's FTTX infrastructure projects, working with OGERO and the Ministry of Telecommunications. IMATEL S.A.R.L. is a telecommunications company founded in 1986, offering fiber optic cables along with telephony, networking, and security systems. They are recognized for supplying and integrating low-current engineering products, including cables and connectors. Nexans Lebanon (Liban Cables) manufactures and supplies a wide range of cables, including fiber optic solutions suitable for various installations and infrastructure projects in Lebanon. Additional Options Other companies in Lebanon provide cabling, networking, and fiber optic solutions, including local distributors and system integrators listed in directories such as Yelleb and Kompass. These companies often offer turnkey solutions, installation services, and support for enterprise and public sector projects. Summary For businesses or projects requiring optical fiber cables in Lebanon, OptiLink, FWC, IMATEL, and Nexans Lebanon are among the most established and reliable options. They provide both products and technical support, ensuring compatibility with international standards and local infrastructure needs.
